

I would like to express my opinio on behalf of Satellite radio.
I subscribe to a service that is "legal" and the FCC is considering reviewing whether a national service can supply local content. This is becoming more of a first amendment issue than the latest crackdown on lewd content.

I CHOOSE to pay for the content provided by my Satellite radio provider. I travel extensively for business and the traffic and weather content gives me information not available on terresrial radio in my home (or any) market. This service to me is valuable. If the FCC were to adopt NAB's petition 04-160 and block this service you would be inconviencing me a great deal. Times and technologies change. Please do not stifle technological advances for the greater good of the public that the FCC serves.

Terrestrial radio could offer this same service by updating thier technology. I guess in a free market economy if someone figures out a way to make people like "myself "pay for what has been free they have to try to fight it since they are not smart enough to keep up with the Joneses.
